What is encapsulation?

Python provides access to all the variable and method globally.

By using encapsulation, we can restrict the variables and method access globally by making it private or protected or we can say wrapping the member variables and member functions in a single unit(class) is known as encapsulation.

Note:-

1. Single underscore(protected)
2. Double underscore(private)